Cookie Policy

LAST UPDATE

March 2025

This website “www.hypersolid.com” uses cookies and other web technologies for various purposes. You can find out more about cookies and how to manage them on this website in this Cookie Policy.

Should you require any further information in relation to the cookies we use, please contact us via legal@hypersolid.com.

What are Cookies?

A “cookie” is a small text file stored on a website visitor’s device by the website and is used to store data about the website visitor’s preferences or activity on a website. Each website visitor will be given the opportunity to fully or partially accept, or decline the placement of, certain types of cookies when visiting a website. Once cookies are fully or partially accepted by a website visitor, those fully or partially accepted cookies are transmitted back to the website during each subsequent visit or to any other website recognizing these cookies.

Two broad categories of cookies exist:

- First party cookies, which are cookies that are directly stored by a website; and
- Third-party cookies, which are cookies that are stored by a third party on behalf of a website.

Cookies have variable lifespans on your computer or mobile device. “Session cookies” are short-lived, existing only while your browser is active and erased once you close your browser. On the other hand, “Persistent cookies” are long-lasting and exist even after you have closed your browser. The latter can be used by websites in order to re-identify your device when you revisit a website.

What types of Cookies do we use?

This website may use the following type of cookies:

- Essential/strictly necessary cookies are cookies that are critical in order to ensure the optimal operation of this website. These cookies are used to detect misuse and to facilitate the transmission of communications over a network;

- Performance cookies are cookies which are used for collecting information on how a website visitor behaves on a website, for the purpose of improving the website and enhancing the user experience;
- Functional cookies are cookies which allows a website to remember a website visitor's preferences and choices they make on a website.

Functional Cookies

These cookies enable the website to provide enhanced functionality and personalisation. They may be set by us or by third party providers whose services we have added to our pages. If you do not allow these cookies then some or all of these services may not function properly.

Performance Cookies

These cookies allow us to count visits and traffic sources so we can measure and improve the performance of our website. They help us to know which pages are the most and least popular and see how visitors move around the website. All information these cookies collect is aggregated and therefore anonymous. If you do not allow these cookies we will not know when you have visited our website and will not be able to monitor its performance.

Strictly Necessary Cookies

These cookies are necessary for the website to function and cannot be switched off in our systems. They are usually only set in response to actions made by you which amount to a request for services, such as setting your privacy preferences, logging in or filling in forms. You can set your browser to block or alert you about these cookies, but the website might not function properly if you do so. These cookies do not store any personally identifiable information.
